Program and contents:

This workshop allows to understand how Information systems contribute to the working of a company, but also to comprehend the impact that they will have on an organization. A set of fundamental courses is completed by an annual project through which the participants will be brought to make a study of the existing information systems, a diagnosis and to develop recommendations (the exact specifications will depend naturally on the chosen project).

This workshop applies to the students wishing to work in management consultancies; it also prepares to participate in any project in which Information systems have an important place. Considering the omnipresence of the computing solutions organized nowadays in companies, it allows to fully understand the links existing between the "business" part and the "technical" part and so it prepares the students to become effective contributors in the management of any corporate development plan.
